

My name is Robert Burke. I was born and raised in Grosse-Île and I now fish alongside my father. I plan to take over the family business in the coming years.

Fishing is not just work to me — it is my future. It is how I plan to build my life here.

Because of that, I have serious concerns about the proposed wind project and its location. Fishing grounds near our coastline are important to many of us, including my family. My older brother also fishes not far from the area being considered.

I am concerned about potential impacts on marine life, wildlife, and endangered species. I am also concerned about our dunes and coastal erosion. We have already seen how fragile our shoreline is, and what happens on land can affect the water as well.

If I am going to take over this business and raise my future here, I need to know that decisions are being made with long-term protection in mind.

This project affects my livelihood, my environment, and my future in Grosse-Île.
